Foto autors Oskars Žūra

The exhibition will take you on an exploratory journey through the ages, introducing the importance of horses in the everyday life and celebrations of the Duchy of Courland-Semigalia. From work horses and cart horses to thoroughbred trotters in the time of Ernst Johann Biron – horses have always been an integral part of the court and the duchy.

The exhibition will allow you to learn: what the Duke's stables were like and how many employees worked there; what breeds of horses the Duke owned and how they were bred; what role horses played in court ceremonies and entertainment.
